

AND STILL IT BOOMS.

Another Immense Crowd in Attendance—How the Voting Stands.

There was a children's matinee at the fair yesterday, and it was largely attended. There will be another on Saturday.

Last night there was an immense crowd and the money literally rolled into the coffers of the Light Infantry corps. A large number of the people had visited the fair with the double intention of viewing the scene and gazing on Mrs. Langtry at the same time, as the city had been plentifully sprinkled with dodges announcing that an invitation had been extended to the actress and that she expected to be present. A letter was received, however, from the manager of Mrs. Langtry saying that she had intended accepting the invitation, but had experienced a sudden indisposition which compelled her to forego the pleasure. So those who were curious to see Mrs. Langtry were disappointed. The large numbers of pretty girls fully made up for the beauty's non-appearance, however, and the discontent was but momentary.

The scenes were much the same as on the preceding nights. The girls with books and pocket-rending appeals were as numerous as the leaves in Vallambrosa, and the susceptible young, old and middle aged men were present in full force. THE REPUBLICAN reporter was standing near a booth moralizing upon the wonderful effects produced by the red haired girl in the yellow dress across the room when a young lady in a blue dress began laying their plans for a financial forage. Suddenly one of them said:

"Annie, there's a couple of fellows who look green—come on."

The twin sweeps down on a pair of the dearest looking youth in the room. Their hair was banged, their nice little coats were acceptably short, and their shoes were pointed like negro minstrel jokes, and their trousers fit them with a day-before-yesterday previousness that was beautifully artistic. The girls assumed most bewitching glances, and they spoke so softly and sweetly that their voices sounded as if a flock of little song birds were flying out of their mouths. The dudes smirked and smiled; then grew sadly serious as they fished for the money they did not possess.

At last one of the girls said sympathetically: "Ah! well, I am sorry you have spent all your money. You must get your mothers, to give you a little more to-night." Then the parties drifted apart on the tide of humanity.

The spinning Jenny coined money, and the pickled sturgeon was a literal mine of wealth for the corps. Voting progressed rapidly, but quietly, and only a few votes were recorded on the blackboards. The Marine band discouraged music in its usual magnificent manner, and Mr. Jaeger's solo was received with a storm of applause. The programme rendered was as follows:

- 1. March—"Pet of the Petticoats," Sousa.
- 2. Overture—"Grand Duchess," Offenbach.
- 3. Valse—"La Pina Belle," Waldteufel.
- 4. Cornet solo—"The Girl," Hartman.
- 5. Selection—"Pianissimo Echoes," Ross.
- 6. Ballad—"Forever and Forever," Sullivan.
- 7. Musical—"Trial by Jury," Sullivan.
- 8. Gavotte—"Imperial," Faust.
- 9. Galop—"Song of the Soldiers," Strauss.

The programme for to-night will be as follows:

- 1. March—"Wolverine," Sousa.
- 2. Overture—"The Freight," Boettcher.
- 3. Valse—"The Girl," Waldteufel.
- 4. Selection—"Patience," Sullivan.
- 5. Polka—"Valse," Schreuer.
- 6. Duet from "Mazeppa," Strauss.
- 7. Medley—"Pianissimo Echoes," Ross.
- 8. Waltz—"Kiss," Strauss.
- 9. "Armistice," Strauss.
- 10. Schottish—"Dancing in the Barn," Strauss.
- 11. Song from "Iolanthe," Sullivan.
- 12. Galop—"Aesthetic," Fairbank.

MARY BOWEN'S TESTIMONY.

Bad Treatment of the Patients at the Tewksbury Almshouse—A Lively Tilt Between Gov. Butler and the Committee.

Boston, April 18.—At the Tewksbury examination to-day Mary E. Bowen, formerly an inmate and the mother of a child born out of wedlock, said she could not eat the food furnished at the almshouse, and that she was money supplied to her. She never saw any of the Marsh family while there. Thirty or more women were bathed in the same water. Many of the patients had skin diseases and many were infested with vermin. While there was time carbolic acid was poured on the heads of such patients. Vermin were all over the place, rats being so abundant that the patients would call the nurses to drive them away. One consumptive woman was taken to the hospital, and her feet were badly bitten. This happened every night until she died. The closets and everything were filthy, but when visitors were expected things were cleaned. One woman who died was large, and her body was crowded into a box by men standing on it. It even then she had on her head the same bonnet she wore when alive. Another woman occupied the bed on which this woman died that night, no change of furniture being made upon it. Some of the witnesses said that they were beaten with sticks and tied with ropes. Witness had come on from New York to give her testimony. Mr. Brown asked her several questions, which Gov. Butler said were not pertinent. Mr. Brown reported that the director of the witnesses so far were fit subjects for criticism, and he proposed in this case to know this witness's entire story. Gov. Butler said he did not propose to sit still and allow his witnesses to be maligned. He asked the committee not to allow it. Some of their daughters, he said, might by chance come to this hall upon earth. [Loud applause from the spectators followed.]

The governor said that because the witness was a fallen woman her character should not be an issue in this case. She should answer all pertinent questions, but not those which sought to drag her down.

Mr. Brown said his excellency winced as he never had before. He called the governor's attention to a case when the governor questioned witnesses in regard to character, etc., in the most unbecoming way.

The question as to proceeding with the cross-examination was decided by the committee by a vote of 5 to 4 in the affirmative.

Mrs. Bowen, in answer to questions regarding her misfortunes and the methods adopted by her father to put her in the almshouse, she would not give the name by which she was known in New York, and out of this arose a long and irate discussion.

Mr. Brown said he could not look up the witness's character for veracity unless he knew her New York name. The governor had promised to give him a letter from Mr. King of New York, who had employed the witness, but the governor said he would do so until he was ready. Mr. Brown said if this examination was to be anything but a farce for a political purpose for this year and the next, the committee would not sustain the governor in the position he had taken.

The governor said he had no objection to the examination, but he would not let the witness and promised to protect her from infamy. He would turn over Mr. King's letter to the committee when ready, and the opposing counsel should see it. He had never seen the letter, but he would see it in this investigation and not until the charge was made that it was for a political purpose. This slang of the newspapers was repeated here when he was performing one of the most painful duties ever imposed upon him, and of which he had avoided making a farce. He suggested that the committee take a vote on this and kindred questions to determine if they are political ones.

Mr. Brown said the governor had declared on four occasions during the investigation that his testimony should go before the country, and he (Brown) could see no reason why the investigation should not be held with closed doors.

For what purpose could the country listen to the testimony except for a political purpose?

The governor said this investigation would interest the entire country where there were institutions like Tewksbury and it ought to go before it. Already it had aroused investigations in other states. He would have a political thought in connection with it. The only questions to be decided were the laws of propriety and of humanity, but the opposing counsel took the narrow view of it of which he was capable.

The chairman said that the governor's remark that another vote would hand this committee down five to four as another committee was handed down to the country by its eight to seven vote was highly improper, and he hoped that the chairman's intensions would be made by any of the counsel.

The governor said he had a little respect for the chairman's opinion as the latter had for him; and he had no respect for the chairman's decisions.

On being asked if Miss Bowen would be present to-morrow, Gov. Butler said if she were not her testimony could be stricken from the record. Adjourned.

EXTENDING THE GAS PIPES.

The Company Tardily Carrying Out a Promise Made Long Ago.

The district commissioners have lately granted the request of the Washington Gas-light company to lay mains on Sixteenth street, north of U street, and other places where no gas pipes hitherto have been laid.

From the records of the commissioners' office it appears that on January 28, 1882, the residents of Sixteenth street, north of U street, petitioned the commissioners to have the gas mains extended along that street, and in reply thereto were informed by Ident. (now Capt.) Greene, under order of the engineer commissioner, in a letter dated February 17, 1882, that the gas company would extend the main on Sixteenth street from its present terminus to Boundary street as soon as the weather would permit. Considerably over a year has elapsed and this published permit is the first evidence that the gas company has thought of relieving the residents on this street from the total darkness they lived in, notwithstanding the many promises of the company that the mains should be extended. It seems pretty plain to the average mind that there is a good deal of seasonal weather in 1882 after the seventeenth of February, although it may not have been good gas company weather. And it is considered rather strange that not until the indignation and much suffering people of Washington began to express their condemnation of the gas company, that the gas company that the latter began to think they had over a year before made promises they would extend their mains up Sixteenth street.

A Gymnastic Exhibition.

A down stalwart young man made their bow before a crowded audience in Lincoln hall last night. They were the expert athletes of the Baltimore gymnasium in a programme embracing many difficult and skillful feats. The audience was an appreciative one, and as each skillful gymnast finished he was greeted with storms of applause.

The following was the programme: 1. class club swinging and group; 2. horizontal bar, 3. acrobatic exercises; 4. high jumping; 5. parallel bars; 6. artistic movements; 7. club swinging; 8. grand pyramids; 9. initiation. It is to be hoped that the performance of last night will result in the establishment of a gymnasium in this city.

The Emancipation Committee.

The aids and the various committees of the emancipation celebration have met at the Philadelphia house for the purpose of perfecting a permanent organization. On motion of George W. Stewart, Col. P. H. Carson was nominated for temporary chairman.

Mr. J. Bailey was appointed a committee of one to notify the various committee aids and staff officers to meet Monday night, twenty-third, at the same place at 7:30 p. m. Speeches were made by Col. Carson, George W. Stewart, and Col. N. G. Graham, Messrs. Frank Brown, C. W. Green, and others.

BASE BALL.

The Boston Glee Club Wins the National by a Score of Nine to Five.

Nearly a thousand persons witnessed the game between the Nationals and the famous Boston nine on the new Athletic grounds, Ninth and S streets, yesterday afternoon, and it was the best exhibition of ball tossing witnessed here this season. The home nine felled much better than the visitor, but the red uniformed men knocked all the twist out of Wise's pitching and sent the ball flying over the field with the most nonchalant regularity. The Nationals have not hunted baser than so suddenly since their Horrible came down a couple of years ago. The following was the score:

INNING.

Nationals..... 2 1 0 0 1 2 0 1-9

Boston..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0-5

A very interesting game was played on the grounds opposite the old National grounds yesterday evening between the Columbia and a picked nine, which resulted in a tie score of 11 to 11.

This afternoon the Waverly will play the Peabody, of Baltimore, on the new grounds. The Peabody are strong players and are contestants for the Maryland association pennant.

The Star Base Ball club, of East Washington, has reorganized, with the following players: Brown, c.; Heck, p.; Waters, 1 b.; Forgers, 2 b.; Ward, 3 b.; Mack, s. s.; Dowell, 1 f.; McGiven, c. f.; Cockrell, r. f. Challenges may be sent to George Heck, No. 1113 G street northeast.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

Quarterly Meeting of the Fifth Subdivision—Interesting Reports.

At the second quarterly meeting of the fifth subdivision of Associated Charities, held last night in the parlors of the Spencerian Business college, the treasurer, Mrs. Sara A. Mayne, gave a detailed report of receipts and disbursements, showing the total receipts since the annual meeting in October to be $357.72; total disbursements, $357.72. No balance in the treasury. The secretary, Mrs. Spencer, said a general misunderstanding prevailed as to the organization and plans of the Associated Charities. It is not the purpose of the Associated Charities to relieve churches and charitable organizations of their duties, but to systematize and organize them so as to obtain and furnish information which will prevent duplication and fraud.

Members of churches and societies are constantly discovering cases, declaring them worthy and sending them over to the Associated Charities for relief, just the reverse of the true order.

One gentleman, representing a relief society of a large church, wrote her that they had raised $20 on one poor family, and she desired the Associated Charities to undertake its permanent support. Another gentleman had sent to her twelve tramps to investigate and dispose of (a proper thing to do), but he had not sent one cent to sustain the work. It takes hard brain-work and money to rid the city of these cases.

Mr. Armstrong was elected a representative of the fifth subdivision of the central board of managers. A letter from him urged a general co-operation of citizens in this beneficial labor. "Many hands make light work."

A beautiful letter from the Froebel society was read, thanking the Fifth Subdivision of Associated Charities for its donation of $25 to the Bethany Free kindergarten, "their beloved child."

The quarterly meeting adjourned to May 24.

Local Items.

John Steale, Johnson & Wright, C. C. Johnson, and J. W. Dent, saloon keepers, were arrested by Officers Horne, Ellis, and Nicholson yesterday for keeping bar open on Sunday.

P. F. McMahon, an unlicensed commercial agent, was arrested by Officer Breen yesterday.

Miss Catherine Lewis was taken ill at the close of the second act of Olivette last night, and Drs. H. P. De Voe and H. H. Barker, the surgical and medical assistants, were called to her aid. She was suffering from a violent attack of hysteria. Under their treatment the fair patient was quickly relieved. They stated that she will be able to appear to-night.

About 5:30 yesterday afternoon Moses Anderson, a colored man, while at work, was down a building corner G street and New Jersey avenue northwest, was knocked down by one of the partitions falling on him. He was picked up and found to be bruised very badly. He was removed to his home, No. 246 Thirteenth street northeast, where Dr. Morrison attended him.

Funeral of Rev. Alfred Holmead.

The funeral of the late Rev. Alfred Holmead took place from the Epiphany church yesterday at 2 o'clock p. m. The church was crowded with the mourning relatives and friends of the deceased. The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Paret. The fifteenth chapter of St. Paul's epistle to the Corinthians, beginning "Christ has risen from the dead," was read, followed by prayer. Six nephews of the deceased acted as pallbearers. A long line of carriages, filled with the congregation, friends, and acquaintances of the dead pastor, followed the remains to Rock Creek cemetery, where the interment took place.

Mr. Hutchinson's Condition.

Mr. H. M. Hutchinson was reported to be much stronger last night than he has been for several days. His stomach retains the food administered, and the paralysis of the eyes is disappearing gradually. He may rally and gain some strength, but the chances are against him.

Is there anything that is more attractive or pleasing to behold than a well-dressed child? To see many of the children on our streets in clothes that disfigure them causes us to think "that beauty unadorned, &c." is applicable here. To avoid this, we say to you bring your children to us. Nowhere is there a prettier stock to select from, and the prices are always at the very lowest point.

Parents who have given the subject of dressing their children the consideration it deserves are unanimously of the opinion that we are the Great Headquarters for Children's and Boys' Wear. In fact, there is no question about it. That if the children are to be stylishly dressed, they should be brought at once to
